The Texans at Hacienda of the Salado, in the morning, overpowered their guards and escaped.

The escaped Texans wandered about in the mountains of Northern Mexico. Several died of hunger and thirst. Only 4 of the escaped Texans reached their homes. The rest were captured and returned to the Hacienda of the Salado.

Santa Anna heard about the escape and ordered all men shot.
But the officers refused to kill all 170 of the prisoners. They brought a jar with 153 white beans and 17 black ones. The Texans were blind folded and drew beans to decide their fate. 17 were executed.
